New York City's Particular Grief Is Municipal Subway

It says here that the government of the City of New York costs each citizen $181.78 per year, and the suspicion is growing that the orchestra has outlasted the dancers.

New York's per-capita-cost is the highest in America, comparing to $143.33 for Chicago, $141.10 for Los Angeles, $138.05 for Detroit, and $88.64 for Philadelphia. This comparison was carried yesterday by the Associated Press, giving as its authority a survey by the New York Daily News.

In any event, metropolitan New York is over a barrel, committed to an annual budget of 17.5 billion dollars, but depending for much of its revenue on the state government — which is controlled by the Republicans. The city, of course, is Democratic, and the verbal exchange between the downstate Democrats and the upstate Republicans is something to put in your scrapbook.

The statehouse at Albany sent a message down the Hudson river which said New York City's budget was

"a collection of fiscal tricks held together with string and sticks and baling wire and dried mud."

Democratic Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri retorted that the intelligence of New York City voters had been "assaulted by the carnival shouts of professional scolds, political snake-oil men, demagogues, and financial wizards from the suburbs, who always rise up from the backwaters of the community in the spring of the election year."

It would be amusing, this wordy quarrel between Governor Thomas E. Dewey and Mayor Impellitteri, but for the fact that whatever the justice of New York City's financial pleas her general fiscal policy is a prime example of the thing that is helping drive city-dwellers out of the big centers and into the suburbs. Each census report confirms the fact that the big cities have stopped growing, and annexation has become virtually impossible because of the bankruptcy threatening the big-town governments.

In New York City's case the specific trouble is said to be the municipal transit system which operates the subways and which alone shows a deficit of 47 millions. For political reasons a long succession of New York mayors has encouraged the subways to perpetuate cheap fares and operate at a loss. Now the state government is stipulating that as the price for continued financial help the city must surrender control of the subways to a state commission, which is expected to hike fares and put the transit system on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The subway financial scandal is New York City's worst blot. And there is more than a little justice in the state government's demand that the metropolitan politicians shake loose from it if they expect to get financial help for the rest of the city's needs.

Home rule is a fine thing, but the mismanagement that has become chronic in America's No. 1 city reflects on the whole institution of democracy. And at the root of New York City's trouble is its grievous transit in municipally-owned transit — operated consistently at a heavy loss for a generation.

Early Discovery of TB Leads to Early Recovery

Age makes little difference as tuberculosis attacks everyone. The idea that older people are immune was probably because the disease was most common among young people.

However, in recent years more people over 65 have been dying of TB than ever before. Almost yearly the mobile X-ray unit visits Hope and surrounding areas. Since it's possible to have the disease without knowing it the best way is to find out early.

To wipe out TB each community must join against the disease doctors, health departments, nurses, and other agencies are ready to help anyone faced with the disease. Communities can help these agencies by supporting the mass X-ray campaign.

On May 20-21 the Mobile X-ray Unit will be in front of Citizens National Bank to take X-rays. Early discovery leads to early recovery.

Mayor Soothes Angry Waco Residents

WACO, Tex. (UP) — Mayor Ralph Wolf of this tornado-stricken city today quelled angry merchants who claimed bulldozers were ripping up their property by restricting military operations to areas where bodies might still be buried.

Some merchants whose partially-demolished buildings and stocks were ripped up by bulldozers seeking bodies had complained that salvagable merchandise and equipment was being ruined. It was reported that some store owners had threatened law suits against the city.

Thus far, 112 bodies have been recovered, very few of them yesterday. Some more were expected to be found today.

The Texas death toll from Monday's storms stood at 122, including 10 killed at San Angelo, 190 miles to the west.

Military services which offered their help were concentrating this morning on areas called "probabilities" for bodies.

Suit to Test Pay to Eldridge

CLARKSVILLE, (UP) — State Sen. Wiley W. Bean plans a taxpayer's suit challenging the $15,000 annual salary being paid to State Highway Director Herbert Eldridge.

Eldridge, former chief planning engineer of the Texas Highway Department, has been under attack almost since he took over the Arkansas post May 1. Other legislators have criticized his ideas and speaking engagements at civic clubs.

Sen. Bean pointed out that Eldridge's $15,000 annual salary is $9,000 a year more than is paid to the state attorney general who has campaign expenditures to meet.

Arkansas constitution provides that no officer of the state may draw more than $5,000 a year. However, the legislature has made appropriations for larger salaries under a ruling distinguishing between an "officer" and an "employee" of the state.

Bean did not say when his taxpayer's suit will be filed.

Men and Women Have Their Moments and They Have Made Our Little Lives Memorable

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — It is the big moments that make our little lives memorable.

To a woman her wedding day, the day she gives birth to her first child, and the day she buries her husband — these traditionally have been the great landmark moments, although now a fourth is getting more popular: The day the judge gives her alimony.

The big moments with men are different. When a man marries he is to himself even to cry. "Help! Let me out of here!" And he is in a familiar place when he first becomes a father.

A woman's treasured moments are always allied to years, a man's generally are tied to his peacock pride, to a goal won.

Perhaps you can find some of your own best-remembered moments among the following:

1. The day you let go of the sofa and took your first uncertain

British Press Denounces McCarthy

LONDON, (UP) — The transatlantic shouting match between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee sparked a rash of comment today in the British press.

Two pro-Labor newspapers printed front-page editorials upholding Attlee's right to say there are "elements" in America which oppose a Korean settlement. Other newspapers with varying political viewpoints plainly indicated their sympathies lay with the Labor party's leader.

President Eisenhower's conciliatory remarks at his weekly press conference were all but lost in the shuffle. The President said he did not think the rift between Britain and the U.S. over dealings with Russia and Korean policy is as wide as it might appear.

Although this drew little attention in London, Moscow's two principal newspapers — Pravda and Izvestia — carried identical 186-word summaries of the Eisenhower statements in today's editions. Neither paper offered any comment, however.

Russia Ahead in Jet Planes

By J. J. MEEHAN

PARIS (UP) — Experts at Supreme Allied Headquarters said today that Russia has far outstripped the West in jet aircraft development, despite a five-year handicap.

It is just 12 years today since the successful flight of Frank Whittle's Gloster F-28 ushered the free world into the jet age.

The starting date of Soviet jet production is generally believed to have been in 1946, when captured German experts were put at the service of Russian planmakers — and Britain's Labor government began shipping jet engines to Russia to serve as prototypes.

Russia and the West are running neck and neck today in the quality of jets in service — and presumably on the drawing board — but the Soviet air fleet has a vast advantage in quantity.

Group Slashes Health, Welfare, Education Funds

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Appropriations Committee today slashed deeply into funds both President Eisenhower and former President Truman requested for the Labor Department and the new Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It sent to the House floor for debate next week a bill to appropriate $1,963,581,750 for the two departments and related agencies for the 1954 fiscal year, which starts July 1.

Without counting such fixed expenditures as $1,340,000,000 for public assistance grants to states, the cut amounted to 17 per cent from Truman's January budget requests and nine per cent from revised estimates of the Eisenhower administration.

The new funds recommended by the committee compare with $2,098,063,861 requested by Truman and $2,207,913,470 sought by his successor.

By agencies, here's how the money would be distributed:

Labor Department — $254,428,000 compared with $296,818,600 requested by Truman and $1,722,644, 870 by Eisenhower.

National Labor Relations Board — An even nine million compared with $9,800,000 requested by Truman and 9½ millions by Eisenhower.

National Mediation Board — $1,064,000 compared with $1,168,000 requested by Truman and $1,083,000 by Eisenhower.

Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service — $3,210,000 compared with $3,747,500 requested by Truman and $3,470,000 by Eisenhower.

Rivers Continue to Rise in State

By The Associated Press

Arkansas came up for a breather yesterday from the heavy rains that have drenched the state since Sunday. Only showers fell on scattered areas.

But the U. S. Weather Bureau warned that it was just a 1-day break, and forecast more rain for today.

The aftermath of the downpours showed today when Arkansas rivers at four communities reached the flood stage and over.

And the State Highway Department reported that sections of at least 10 highways were inundated by high water.

Rain, Rain, Rain — It Continues

By The Associated Press

Raincoat weather prevailed over a wide band between New England and Eastern Texas today, and there were scattered showers over most of the Western states.

A number of thunderstorms drenched parts of the Lower Mississippi Valley, bringing 1.48 inches of rain to Shreveport, La., and 1.04 inches to Evansville, Ind., in 24-hour period.

Sunny weather dominated the Central and Northern plains and much of the Rockies, where temperatures were warm. It was sunny in the Southeast where Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston, S.C., reported maximum mercury readings of 92 Thursday.

Unseasonable cool weather was reported in the Lower Ohio Valley.

Integration Hot Issue at Bar Meeting

By LEON HATCH

HOT SPRINGS, (UP) — Bar integration — apparently a hotter issue now than ever before — will come up before the Bar Association of Arkansas late today.

The Arkansas Supreme Court on April 27 ordered integration under which all lawyers must belong to and support a professional organization.

Customarily, that would have ended the matter. Instead, it just seemed to make many of the state's lawyers aware of the fact that there was such a thing as integration.

In any case, integration has been the subject most discussed in the informal conversations of lawyers attending the 55th convention of the Bar Association here. This afternoon, the matter will get formal attention.

The Rules Committee late yesterday voted to refer to the convention floor two resolutions asking the Supreme Court to take a second look at integration.

The time set was just before election of officers on the theory that there would be more lawyers present in the convention hall than at any other time.

One resolution — and opponents of integration agreed this one would be presented first — would call on the Supreme Court to rescind its approval of integration.

The resolution was submitted to the Rules Committee by Shields Goodwin of Little Rock, Chancellor Thomas F. Butt of Fayetteville and James Hale of Marion. Hale said 50 more lawyers were actively supporting it.

U.S. Is Trying to Keep Peace Talks Going

But Reds Make Task Almost Impossible

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (UP) — U. S. officials have decided to probe the present Communist position in Korea as fully as possible to try to determine whether there is any basis to hope for an eventual truce.

The alternative, in the light of the Red rejection of an Allied plan for breaking the deadlock over final disposition of prisoners of war, was to accept collapse of the talks at once. Instead, the negotiators met today for an hour and 20 minutes without evident progress.

Officials recognize that the decision to explore the Red attitude in a few more sessions may do no more than put off a breakdown.

They cling to some hope, however, that evidence may yet be found that the Reds really want a truce.

Nehru Favors Chinese Plan for Prisoners

NEW DELHI, India (UP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru today endorsed the most recent Communist proposal of repatriation of Korean prisoners of war in preference to this week's counter-plan from the United Nations Command.

The U. N. negotiators' proposals, he told Parliament in a special foreign policy statement, "diverge considerably from the (Indian-authorized) General Assembly resolution to which the United Nations stands committed."

But the Red proposals, he continued, are a "very close approximation" of the U. N. resolution and "seemed to afford a promising, solid basis for a solution of the immediate problem."

"It should be possible to amplify them or vary them by agreement where necessary," Nehru continued, adding:

"We would welcome any solution accepted by the parties concerned, but feel such a solution is much more likely to be found on the basis of the United Nations resolution."

The U. N. resolution, adopted last December, provided that the U. N. would take custody of any POW's refusing repatriation after a four-nation repatriation commission had had them for 90 days and a political conference on Korea had discussed their future for another 30 days.

The Communists last week proposed that a five-nation repatriation commission — including India — take over the prisoners for four months. The fate of any refusing repatriation after that period would be settled by a political conference.

Some Lawmen Dislike Ike's Position

WASHINGTON (UP) — Several senators displayed little liking today for President Eisenhower's stated position on possible admission of Red China into the United Nations in the event a truce is reached in Korea.

The President told his news conference yesterday he would now say that admission of the U. N. should follow an armistice. He did not add that he would oppose China's admission under any circumstances.

Some lawmakers said they saw a possibility the President may have left the gate ajar for future compromises.

Among these, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said he is categorically opposed either to U. S. recognition of Communist China or to its admission under any circumstances.

"I think this country should be absolutely opposed at every point," he said.

Joe Ensminger, Hope Public School board has accepted the resignation of Coach Joe Ensminger who will become head coach at Sulphur Springs, Texas High School starting July 1, it was announced today.

Ensminger has coached here two years and his teams lost nine games, won 13 and tied two. Before coming to Hope he coached in Mississippi, Michigan and Hot Springs. He will work on his Masters Degree at ESTIC at Commerce this summer and take over at Sulphur about July 1.

"As far as the school is concerned relations with Coach Ensminger were the best possible and we are sorry to lose him," Superintendent James H. Jones said today.

2,000-Man Red Force Chopped Up by Turks

By MILO FARNETI

SEOUL, (UP) — Turkish infantrymen backed up by thunderous tank and artillery fire early today chopped up a 2,000-man Chinese force which hit three Allied outposts in the biggest assault since the Korean truce talks resumed April 28.

The Turkish commander estimated that 400 Reds were killed or wounded. An officer said the attackers "left quite a few casualties in no-man's land," still uncounted.

An Army spokesman said many Turks were unhappy because the Communists didn't get close enough for them to use their favorite weapon — the bayonet.

The Chinese struck outposts Vegas, Berlin and East Berlin on the Western end of the battle line, only a few miles from the Panmunjom truce talks village. Until two weeks ago the sector was held by the U. S. 1st Marine Division. But the Reds found Turkish troops as the Marines. The Turks are attached to the U. S. 25th Division which took over the sector when the Marines were pulled out for a rest.

trusts and are willing to pay a price for it.

Considerable importance is attached in whatever they find out definitely about the Communist attitude because what happens on Korean peninsula is a clear key to the whole Communist approach to a settlement of East-West differences.

On this broader prospect, there is relatively little optimism among authorities here, although as President Eisenhower stated yesterday the declared purpose and hope of the government is for an ending of tension between the Russian bloc and the rest of the world.

The eagerness with which Moscow has played up the outbreak of differences between U. S. and British officials this week is regarded by some diplomats here as evidence they were right all along in seeing a sinister design in the Kremlin's peace drive. This design, many experts believe, is to split the Western Powers at a time when their united strength presents a serious barrier to Soviet ambitions.

Eisenhower declined yesterday to make an unqualified statement that there must be an armistice in Korea before he would agree to go into a Big Power meeting with Premier Malenkov of Russia. He said in effect he simply did not want to fix any rigid condition. But previously both he and Secretary of State Dulles have pointed up the true negotiations as a major test of Communist intentions.

They did this against the background of developments which began with Stalin's death, led to the latest Kremlin peace campaign and produced, at Red insistence, a resumption of the Panmunjom negotiations which had broken down in complete deadlock last October.

ADMINISTRATION TO CHECK TAFT

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration seemed committed today to a "check it with Taft" policy designed to cement its relations with its No. 1 senator, Taft of Ohio.

Taft's strong position within the administration was pointed up anew by his disclosure that he was consulted in advance on the naming of the nation's military high command.

The denied having "dictated" the appointment of the new chairman and joint chiefs of staff and said he had not even suggested their names.

But from his position as Senate Republican leader, the Ohioan said he intends to push his proposal for an over-all review of military objectives by the new joint chiefs.

Sleep of Safety

There is a case on record of a passenger in a German plane who fell asleep and awoke to find he was the sole survivor in the ship, which had crashed during his sleep with Morpheus.

Old Customs

It still is the custom among sentimental European peasantry to place the bridal finery in a chest, and take it out again only for the purpose of shrouding the wife when she dies.

Before there were clocks in England, the king's clock tower solemnly grew the hours around the king's palace, but he has not operated since 1714.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1953

Corporations which confront their holden stockholders with temptations for well-paid, ruling executives, usually argue that company "A" must provide these "incentives" because other-wise company "B" will lure away the best talent. The answer to this would be a national law forbidding such greedy racketeering. Then they would all be in a level footing and a cynical tax-dodge would be toppled.

Embodiment of the selfishness of the executives in high salary brackets, the unions, especially those of the CIO, have moved in with elaborate demands for hidden or disguised compensation called "fringe benefits." It was embarrassing for an executive drawing $350,000 a year, and accumulating pension rights at the expense of the stockholders, to argue that the horridly-typed types of labor were less deserving of pension and other fringe benefits. The credits to all such recipients always are income from the income tax, so the executives said: "Sure, we are very liberal, broad-minded fellows and we recognize the justice of your demands."

The result has been that the ordinary small stockholder, who is the greatest aggregate investor in big business, has found himself burdened with a liability for pensions to thousands of employees, though he himself can look forward to nothing better than the erratic and feeble pension of social security.

I will go into detail about the corrupt and economically dangerous trend of social security at a later date, but for the moment no more proof of its wickedness need be offered than the fact that the victim is compelled to buy it from an insurance company which makes its own terms and changes them in its own favor right along. No contract is valid without free will on both sides. No contract is good in which one party has the right to change the terms and the other party is compelled to pay whatever the first party demands, under penalty of jail.

I have dealt in some detail with a notice which Sinclair Oil, of New York, sent to its stockholders in anticipation of the April meeting of "stockholders." This typical notice of a company meeting sounds the pitch of such deliberations. You will see that those present look out for themselves and for the lesser employees on the ground that anything good for them is good for the company and that which is good for the company is good for the stockholders.

Under the heading of "proposed savings plan for employees," this notice blandly says: "The desirability of plans for systematic savings by employees, including officers, has become widely recognized."

Recognized by whom? Not by the stockholders but by selfish executives and union bargainers taking advantage of their precedent. — and such plans have been adopted by most of the larger oil companies which are competitors of the corporation."

The unspoken truth of that is, of course, that such executives are members of a circle of familiars and are, on the average, personal friends with a common standard of ethics.

"As the result of collective bargaining concerning demands by unions representing a large percentage of employees, the corporation's principal subsidiaries have agreed on the proposed plan, subject to approval," etc.

Therefore, any employee with one year's service may bank up to five per cent of his pay in a special company fund and the good old reliable sucker with ten shares of common stock will be forced to give this employee, free, one-half of the amount of his allotment. In other words, give a tax-exempt bonus of 2 1/2 per cent of the entire payroll to employees already well paid. There are some trivial minor provisions but at the very worst, the employee, of whatever degree, gets back all he put in.

The excuse given the stockholder for this robbing paternalism at his expense is that the plan "will attract and retain desirable workers, promote employee morale and encourage thrift on the part of employees by affording them a method to provide additional security for their retirement."

All concerned are, of course, eligible for company pensions, which are actually compensation for their working years but excused from current income taxes during those years. And, in addition, all concerned become eligible for their old age pensions under social security on reaching 65.

The stockholder, on the other hand, finds his stock dividends badly diminished by these commitments to the employees and if, on reaching 65, he must continue to hold a job to eke out a living, he forfeits his social security pension.

Concession Has to Be Made in Talks

The deadlock in disposition of North Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to return to their Red-ruled homeland, became commonplace company "B" will lure away the best talent. The answer to this would be a national law forbidding such greedy racketeering. Then they would all be in a level footing and a cynical tax-dodge would be toppled.

Drew Pearson Is Out $50,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury today ordered Drew Pearson, columnist and radio commentator, to pay $50,000 damages to former assistant Attorney General Norman S. Littell.

Court attaches said the award was the largest in a libel action here in the past 30 years. Pearson, who says he never lost a prior libel action in his life, announced promptly that he will appeal.

Christianity MUST Win! . . . CHRISTIANITY WILL WIN!

OLD SHOES

Soles worn thin, uppers wrinkled, warped, polish dull and strings tied in knots. Are they roughed out or worn out? Shoe soles like human souls can be roughed out more than worn out. Neglect, mistreatment, improper care can break down your SOUL as well as your SOLES. Beware of the lusts which war against the soul (1 Pet. 2:11); and have that faith which saves the soul (Heb. 10:39). Some shoes are run down because the feet are twisted. Souls are run down because of crooked habits. An upright walk and an upright life is good for shoes and souls. Restore your soul through daily Bible reading, prayer and faithful church attendance.
